BIOGRAPHY

About Goodness

Goodness James Egbe, professionally known as Omattutee James, is a Nigerian actress and performing artist with over eight years of professional experience across screen, stage and related performance work.

Her work spans television and web series, short films, TV/web films, streaming productions, stage performance, presenting, radio plays and brand advertising.

Goodness has built an active career within Nigeria's screen and creative industries, with credits across major Africa Magic productions and Showmax, alongside independent film and theatre projects.

Her screen work includes Africa Magic Originals such as Debbie's Salon, The Low Priest, Unscripted, Sin and Dividends, as well as FIX US and other television, web and short-film productions.

Alongside acting, her creative practice extends into writing, criticism and developing interests in directing.
